This is the story of a 15-year-old heroin addict. It is a story of addiction, recovery, and hope.

The boy's name is Johnny. He started using heroin when he was 13 years old. By the time he was 15, he was addicted.

Johnny's addiction quickly took over his life. He dropped out of school, lost his friends, and alienated his family. He became a slave to the drug, doing whatever it took to get his next fix.

One day, Johnny overdosed. He was rushed to the hospital, where he was revived. But even after this close call, he couldn't stop using heroin.

Finally, after hitting rock bottom, Johnny decided to get help. He checked into a rehab center, where he began the long and difficult journey to recovery.

Recovery was not easy for Johnny. He had to learn how to live without heroin, and he had to deal with the guilt and shame of his addiction. But with the help of his counselors and support group, he slowly began to rebuild his life.

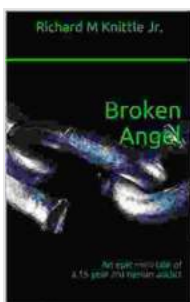

Today, Johnny is a happy and healthy young man. He is grateful for the second chance he has been given, and he is determined to help others who are struggling with addiction.

Johnny's story is a powerful reminder that addiction is a disease that can affect anyone. But it is also a story of hope and redemption. With the right help, anyone can overcome addiction and live a full and happy life.
